Kiwanians construct 'shade-over'

Five members of the Shelbyville Kiwanis Club spent a very hot Saturday afternoon building a new piece of equipment for the new Findlay Mini Park.

The Kiwanians built a shade-over — a double bench with a cover — in the northwest corner of the new park.

The materials for the new bench cost approximately $200.

Building the bench were Eldon Gourley, Tad Gourley, Dick Clark, Jim Wagner and Don Gherkin all of Shelbyville.

Gourley said the Kiwanians built the bench in Findlay because the members of the service organization want people in the rural areas to know that the Shelbyville Kiwanis Club is a county wide club.

Library board reviews report

A financial report for the past year was reviewed by the Findlay Public Library Board when the board met Thursday. The report was published along with the annual report of the Village of Findlay.

In other action, the board tabled action on a dinner for library volunteers until this fall. Library board president Harriet Baker said it would be difficult to schedule the dinner during the summer months when everyone is on vacation.

Library board officers for the coming year were reelected to another term of office. The officers are Harriet Baker, president and head librarian; Sonya Jay, vice president; Lu Carroll, treasurer; and Cherise Cruik, secretary.

Mrs. Baker reported that the annual report is due to be turned in to the Rolling Prairie Library System and the Illinois State Library within 30 days.

In another report, Mrs. Baker told the board the Findlay Public Library has received $200 worth of books which are "materials for adult new readers." The materials came to the library through the Lake Land College Adult Literacy Program.

Several new children's books have been received and are now available in the library. These include: "Care Bears Garden," "Care Bears Party Cookbook," "Care Bears and the New Baby," "Care Bears and the Terrible Twos," "Care Bears Help Out," "Meet the Care Bears."

Also, "AU By Myself," "I Was So Mad," "Just For You," "Just Go To Bed," "Just Grandma and Me," "Just Me and My Dad," "Little Monster at School," "Little Monster's Alphabet Book," "Little Monster's Bedtime Book," "Little Monster's Counting Book," "Me Too," "Merry Christmas Mom and Dad" and "The New Baby."

Summer hours have now been instituted in the Findlay Public Library. The library is now open for business from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday. The library is located in a classroom of the Findlay Grade School.

The public library will be closed the week of July 7 through 11 while summer maintenance work is being done in the school.

Village employees receive raises

By Cherise Cruik
Enterprise Editor

Come July 1, the paychecks of village employees will be a little bigger because of action taken by the Findlay Village Board Monday night.

Four employees will receive six percent boosts in their base salaries and one employee, utility supervisor Doug Byherd, will receive a seven percent raise.

The board voted on a salary schedule proposed by trustee Dwight Riley. Earlier, the board reviewed salary increases of three to six percent for all full-time employees which was prepared by trustee Dave Thurber.

Full-time employees receiving the six percent increase are Tim Spellman and Joan Lucas. Part-time employees also received increases. Betty Perry's salary was raised 30 cents per hour, and Dorothy Brooks salary was raised 75 cents per day.

Recently employed village policeman Mike Welsh did not receive an increase. He was told by the board his performance and salary would be reviewed after six months and again next year at the same time other salaries are considered.

The total cost to the village of the salary increases is just under $3,000. According to figures prepared by Thurber and Riley, total compensation for village employees for the next fiscal year should be around $75,000. This figure includes not only the employee's salary, but benefits such as an IRA, social security costs, unemployment compensation and medical insurance coverage. Part-time employees do not receive the IRA or medical insurance.

"I personally think our employees have done a good job, and we should reward them," Riley said when proposing the salary increase. Thurber concurred with Riley's comments about the village employees. Riley added he felt since Byherd had more responsibility, he deserved a bigger raise.

The six percent increase came on the heels of a similar wage increase for Findlay teachers. The Findlay School Board and Findlay Education Assn. signed a contract last week agreeing to a 6.4 percent increase for all certified personnel. Non-certified personnel received smaller increases. Most part-time help employed by the school district received no wage increase.

A REVENUE SHARING hearing was held prior to the adjourned meeting Monday night. The board has approximately $4,400 in the revenue sharing account and expects to receive $2,000 to $3,000 more before the federal program is phased out.

Making an appeal for funds for the Findlay Summer Baseball Program was Teddy Scott. She appeared before the board on behalf of baseball commissioner Mike Tucker who had a game to coach.

Scott told the board there was a "tremendous increased use" which encouraged volunteers to build a second ball diamond. She said CIPS has agreed to provide poles and lights to put lighting on the new diamond. A concession stand has also been donated.

There are currently 100 children and 30 adults in a church league involved in the summer baseball program.

While she said most of the money and materials have been donated for this year's program, there is a need for "functioning money" for the future.

For the past several years the Findlay Village Board has allocated revenue sharing funds for use by the summer baseball program.

The second request for funds came from Betty Perry on behalf of the Findlay Community Center. As she pointed out, "You've supported us in the past." She said the center was being used by more and more groups and cited the Baptist Church and a growing list of families that use the center for showers, reunions and other family gatherings.

Perry said the Findlay Lioness Club had just donated a new stove to the center. The next piece of equipment needed is an air conditioner, she explained.

Speaking on behalf of the village, Ryherd said he would like to order a new 300 ft. hose for the village sewer machine. The hose is estimated to cost approximately $1,000.

Another equipment need — a computer for the village office — will also be considered when the village board makes appropriations. The board has previously discussed using revenue sharing funds to purchase a computer for the office.

Riley proposed the use of revenue sharing funds to repair or replace sidewalks around the village. Trustee Larry Rodman mentioned one spot that needs work on Division Street.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board agreed to listen to a proposal from H.E.R. & Associates concerning the purchase and operation of the sewage treatment plant.

Two members of the Westville firm, Monte Cherry and John McBride made a preliminary presentation to the board about the type of services their firm offers. They are currently operating seven sewage treatment plants for municipalities and industrial firms and are also building a sewage treatment plant in Rankin.

Before they could work up a proposal for the village board, Cherry and McBride told the board they would need additional information. A proposal may be available within 30 days.

Both representatives of H.E.R. & Associates and the village board agreed the present sewage treatment plant was more sophisticated than was necessary for a village the size of Findlay.

Cherry told the board Findlay probably only needed a plant one-quarter the size of the present plant and less complicated to operate.

McBride asked for various information about the plant operations such as the annual operation-maintenance budget, approximately $36,000; the bonds to be paid off, $448,000; the annual power bill, approximately $9,300 for gas and electric; and the sewer rates, $6.32 for the first 1,600 gallons and $3.95 for every 1,000 gallons (based on water use).

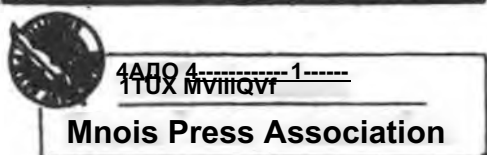

McBride said when the firm draws up a budget to run a sewage treat-

The north elevator of Livergood Grain Co. is a shambles and soon will have been burned and gone forever.

I hate to see landmarks disappear, but they've replaced it with something better. I guess there's something to be said for that. As I hear it the south bin will follow behind the north one so there'll no doubt be some empty space to get used to. The two buildings have served the community long and well, but new ways of doing things are being found everyday, and I guess the KE. staUy Co. decided the huge bins would work better.

I wonder what will happen to the ramps that lead to each of the elevators. The kids loved them when there was enough snow for sliding. Maybe we'll like the new arrangement even better once we get used to it.

Do you know that a part of the hold up in building Eagle Creek Resort has to do with historical sites and the Indiana Brown bat? I don't know where the precious historical sites are, but I've been told that one is part of a concrete slab where a bam used to sit. The other one I know about is some concrete or blocks left from a once upon a time country church.

Now if either the barn or church existed I might see some interest in the history of them, but the way it is no one knows or cares about them.

I guess there were many other sites that caused the layout of the resort to change. The developer wanted to have the golf course ready to seed in October, but another problem was encountered. Trees will have to be cut for the course, but they can't be cut until after Sept. 15. Now that rule has something to do with an endangered bird species called the Indiana Brown bat. I've seen a lot of birds, but I wasn't even aware that bird existed. Maybe it's more endangered than they thought. If it's important enough to hold up a project of that magnitude I'd like to see one. If I do, it will probably be from a picture in a book.

Rainfall report

Practically all of Shelby County experienced a rainless week June 15-18 with just five townships recording rainfall ranging from .02 to .1 of an inch.

The recorded precipitation was .06 of an inch in Penn Township, .03 of an inch and a trace in Pickaway Township, zero in two Ridge, Okaw and Todd's Point townships.

Hospital note

Everett Wildman of Findlay was moved last Friday from Decatur Memorial Hospital to Shelby Memorial Hospital in Shelbyville.

Don't you think it's a wee bit early to be playing with firecrackers? I've heard that some people have been awakened from a sound sleep when their neighbors decided to play with firecrackers, rockets and the likes of such. I've also been told that a group of youngsters riding around have been lighting and throwing them at animals. Naturally the pet owners don't like that much. It's just too early for bang bangs yet.

The Shelbyville Kiwanis club has donated a nice addMon to our mini park. Several members installed a covered bench in the northwest corner of the park Saturday afternoon. And if you'll remember the temperature was in the nineties. They were working hard in all that heat and using their Saturday afternoon off to boot. Thanks Kiwanians, we really do appreciate it.

I don't know a lot about the rules of Medicare, but I'm going to find out about them. I've heard on a few occasions that the length of time a person can stay is limited and that some dying or desperately ill people have been told they'd have to move from the hospital. If this is true, then I have no respect for those who made the rules. In fact, I thought the United States would go to any lengths to see that their constituents had much needed medical care. I really like to think it wouldn't make such cruel rules. I'll find out and let you know more about it in this column.

Findlay doesn't have a traditional Fourth of July celebration, but nevertheless, it will be a time to be very careful. The traffic through town will be very heavy and the beaches will be loaded. There will be more boats on the lake than usual so if you're planning to boat, fish, ski, swim or enjoy any other activities around the lake or use Division Street, please do it very carefully.

County receives grant to promote use of seat belts

The Illinois Coalition for Safety Belt Use announced last week a $1,400 community education grant to Rebecca Fathauer of the Shelby County Health Dept, for their program to promote compliance with Illinois' safety belt use law.

The grant was one of 13 made by the coalition to law enforcement agencies, public health departments, and community service groups throughout the state.

ment plant, "we submit a budget, and we live with it. If it runs over that, we pick up the difference."

In some cases the firm purchases the sewage treatment plant from the municipality and then leases it back.

Board members discussed arbitration with the contractor over the project. They also discussed the possibility of other future litigation to bring the plant up to standards required by the Environmental Protection Agency. The village is still under a sewer ban because the plant has not been approved since construction was completed over five years ago.

McBride told the board that the firm operates with local people purchasing local materials. "We're not in here to knock local people out of work. I'm not going to drive down here every day. We'll be hiring local people." He also stressed that when possible he would use local businesses to purchase supplies.

Following the extensive discussion with McBride and Cherry, Riley made a motion authorizing the firm to work up a proposal to operate and or purchase the Findlay sewage treatment plant. The proposal will be made available at no cost to the village. The motion was approved.

LETTERS WILL BE sent to the owners of seven properties which have been found to be a safety hazard by village officials and Rebecca Fathauer, sanitarian with the Shelby County Health Dept.

Riley had met with Fathauer in May to tour the village and examine properties in need of work. In her letter, Fathauer recommended demolition for five of the seven properties. On the other two properties, she recommended repairs to bring the buildings up to safe standards.

In her letter to the village board, Fathauer stated, "The Shelby County Health Dept feels that each of the seven properties inspected have been allowed to become so decayed, dilapidated and vermin infested that they create a very real hazard to the safety and welfare of the public."

Before a motion was made to send letters to the property owners, Riley made his own recommendation that the board act on three of the properties which are located in the Findlay business district. These three were a small building in the alley off South Main, a building on the corner of East South 2nd and Dazey Street, and a garage located behind an insurance business on South Main.

Riley said he would like to work with some of the property owners and area residents in bringing the buildings down at a minimum of expense to the village. He pointed to a house which the village purchased and was taken down by volunteers as an example.

"We got rid of one house free down by the water plant. We just let everybody come in and get (what they wanted) and pushed the building in and burned it."

Trustee Bob Cox made the motion to write letters to the property owners explaining the findings of the Shelby County Health Dept, and the ordinance which covers the condition of property.

Following a similar course of action, the board made a motion to direct Welch to make a tour of the village and make a list of junk cars or other inoperable motor vehicles. Both the Findlay nuisance ordinance and state statutes prohibit inoperable motor vehicles from being parked on village streets.

The board also:

- Approved a motion to adopt the Prevailing Wage ordinance. At the recommendation of village attorney Mike Kiley, the board approved an ordinance similar to the one recently approved by the Shelby County Board.

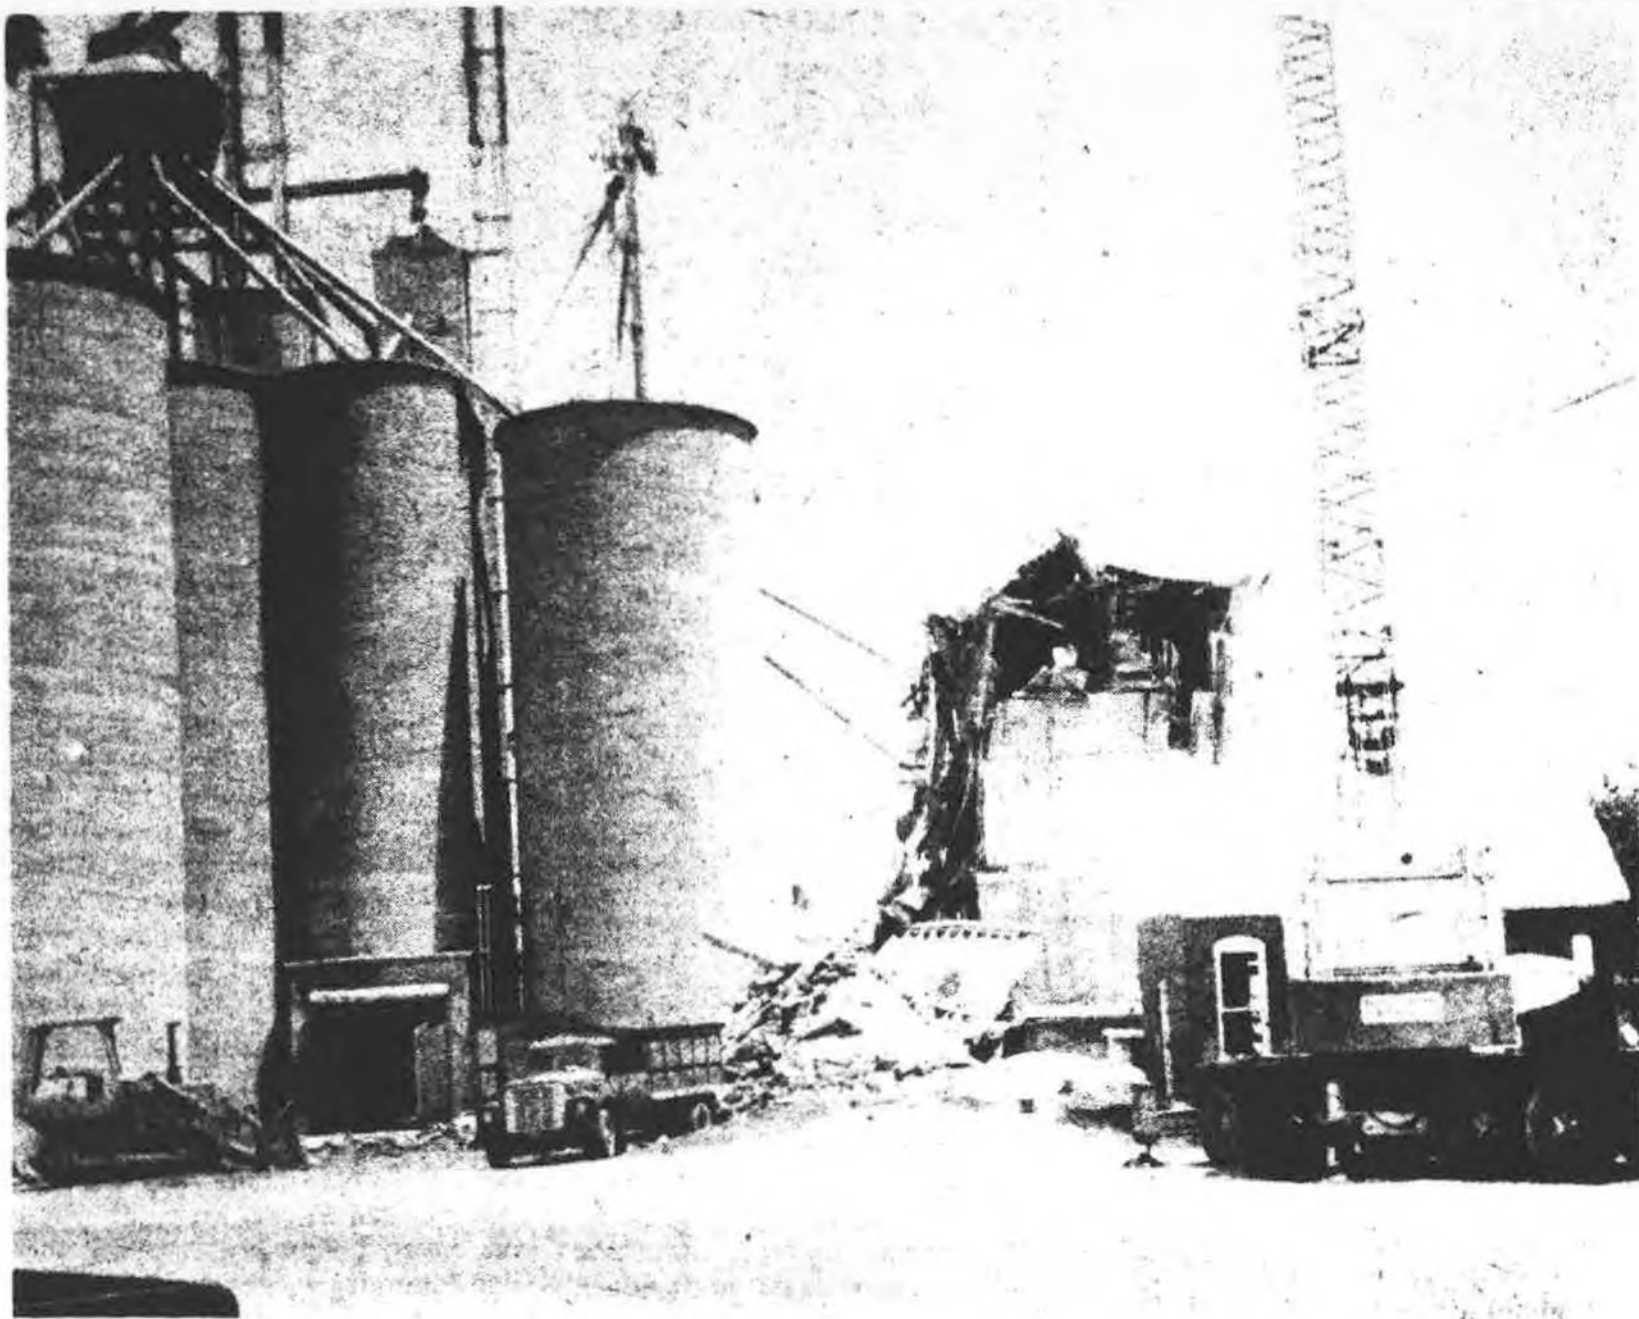

- Learned that the estimated cost of extending natural gas service to the new Eagle Creek resort would be $123,000. Thurber reported the estimate which was made by engineer Jack Enloe. In a related report he told the board a decision would be made on which alternate would be selected for the new access road into the park.

- Heard a report that the Shelbyville Kiwanis Club built a covered bench in the Findlay Mini Park. A letter of appreciation from the board will be sent to the Shelbyville organization.

- Heard a report that a mower deck for the new mower still wasn't available, two months after the new mower was purchased. Riley said he was told by the dealer that a mower deck would be taken off another new unit for the village if their deck wasn't made available soon.

- Learned that McClain Electric has not yet received a contract to replace the control panels on the sewage treatment plant from the engineers. Trustee Ron McClain said his father's firm hadn't received the documents, and they were needed to order the equipment and supplies for the project. The board accepted McClain Electric's bid for the work in May.

The next regular monthly meeting of the village board will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, July 14 in the village hall. The board will work on the annual appropriations ordinance at this meeting. The various commissioners will work on appropriations for the different departments before the meeting. Information on past appropriations was distributed by treasurer Joan Lucas.

Last week two elevators — one built in 1942 and the other dating back to the late 1800s — were demolished. On the site of one of the old elevators, there are plans to install a large metal tank.

Two elevators are demolished

A Findlay landmark came down last week.

Two old elevator buildings have been leveled. The north elevator was built in the spring of 1942 by Ed Dazey. This elevator was to replace one that had burned down sometime in the late 1930's, according to George Dixon, manager of the Livewood Grain Co.

Dixon said it is believed that the south elevator was constructed sometime in the late 1800s.

According to information from the Shelby County Historical & Genealogical Society, Gould Brothers of Windsor built the first elevator in Findlay on the south side of Main Street.

The elevator was later taken over by Farmer's Grain Co. Later, William Truitt built another elevator south of the first one along the railroad tracks. This elevator was later destroyed by fire. After that, Davis Grain Co. built another elevator.

At one time, according to Historical Society information, Findlay had three firms purchasing grain.

There are plans in the process for the site of the two demolished elevators.

Dixon said that on the location where the north elevator was, a large metal tank will be installed. There are no immediate plans to replace the south elevator.

A.E. Staley has been upgrading the Findlay elevator since last summer. They installed a new dryer last fall and all new spouting and raised all of the elevator legs, Dixon said. The result being faster grain handling is now possible.

"We're trying to give farmers faster and better service," Dixon said.

Livewoods owned the elevator from 1944 to 1976 when it was purchased by the A.E. Staley Mfg. Co. of Decatur. Dixon has been manager or assistant manager of the elevator for 38 years. Tom Keim was manager for 40 years.

Findlay receives motor fuel tax

The village of Findlay has been allotted $1,219 in motor fuel taxes for the month of May according to the Illinois Dept. of Transportation. The funds are allocated on the basis of population.

At the same time, Shelby County was allotted $24,062.94 in motor fuel taxes for May. These funds are computed on the basis of motor vehicle registration fees.

Townships in Illinois also received allotments of motor fuel taxes. Shelby County townships received $75,236.73 in the distribution. These funds are computed on the basis of mileage in the individual townships.

skits. The David Johanpeter family of Mattoon will present clown acts.

Persons attending are advised to take lawn chairs.

CORRECTION

It was reported in the Enterprise last week that Findlay High School vocational agriculture instructor Brian Wood asked the school board to okay the purchase of a tractor for the ag program. The wrong price for the tractor was reported in the newspaper. The correct price for the tractor is $3,700.

We regret the error.

A zebra is coming here, to be part of program

A zebra is coming to the Findlay Public Library!

A library activity program called "A to Zebra" begins next week in the library. The program will be held from 9 to 10 a.m. Wednesday mornings starting July 2.

Children from the ages of seven through eleven are encouraged to participate in special events designed to keep them reading, learning and having fun throughout the summer vacation, according to program coordinator Susan Vadakin.

The program lasts for six weeks and will be held each Wednesday. Children who are currently participating in the Findlay Summer Recreation Program will be involved in the library program and others are also welcome to attend, Mrs. Vadakin said.

"A to Zebra" is a little like alphabet soup, with something which will suit everyone. During the summer young readers will be introduced to animals, riddles, work games, crafts which will challenge their reading skills and will provide them with enjoyable library experiences.

Summer reading participants will meet at the same place the summer rec program meets — in the Findlay Mini Park on sunny days and the Findlay Community Center on rainy days.

Registration for the program begins next Wednesday; however, Mrs. Vadakin stressed that children can participate in the program at any time during the six weeks the program is being held.

For further information on "A to Zebra" stop in the library (which is located in a classroom of Findlay Grade School) or telephone Mrs. Vadakin at 756-3141.

Rec program participants to tour the courthouse

"Independence Week" will be the theme of activities in the Findlay summer recreation program next week.

On Monday, Glen Wright will speak about his experiences with the Green Beret. On Tuesday, police will be fingerprinting the children. On Wednesday, Lonnie Matlock of Shelbyville will tell stories about the Civil War and will end with some fireworks.

The program on Thursday will be a field trip to Shelbyville. Plans call for a tour of the Shelby County Courthouse and swimming in the Forest Park pool.

Games and crafts are also planned for "Independence Week."

Enrollment for the program is up to 40 children according to Findlay program director Debbie Spellman. An average of 25 children attend each day. She expects the enrollment to increase even higher when Bible school and summer school ends this week.

This week the children enjoyed a four-mile hike including a stop at the Jim Scott farm home for cool drinks and a look at their pet Terr et, a karate demonstration by Carolyn, Eric and Greg Mitchell, Trish McDonald and Kevin Dawdy and the movie "Ghostbusters." The field trip on Thursday was to Scovill Zoo and the Rock Gardens in Decatur.

Spellman expressed her appreciation to the people who are helping to make the summer rec program a success. She also wanted to thank Connie Wamsing, Stephen's Greenhouse and everyone involved with the Findlay Mini Park and the Community Center for their support.

"It's great to have the support of the whole town, and Findlay is always helpful, especially when it comes to the children," she concluded.

Historical society presents program of country humor

Lowell Goleman will be master of ceremonies for the free show. Debbie Shoaff of Shelbyville will be a vocal soloist, and Kevin Herron of Findlay will be organist.

The Country Bumpkins composed of Allen Fanning, Richard Larson, Keith Snyder and Jim Witt of Shelbyville will stage humorous

CHILDHOOD INJURY

The primary cause of tooth loss among children is not tooth decay. It is trauma. It is the two front teeth that are most likely to be injured by a blow or a fall. Recent studies indicate that dental trauma is most likely to occur between the ages of one and two. This is when babies are just learning to walk. The other key ages are between seven and ten years. During this span, children seem to be particularly active. To guard against such injuries, children should be closely supervised. Also, by correcting misaligned teeth, a child's risk of injury can be lowered. It may even help his speaking and eating. A child's bite should be evaluated by age four.

Careful monitoring of children's teeth should begin at a very early age. Have them develop the habit of visiting the dentist regularly to catch any small problem before it develops into something more serious. Make them understand that the dentist is their friend, one who will make sure that their teeth are always going to be strong and beautiful.

Summer baseball news:

Progress is being made on second ball diamond

Progress is being made to complete a second baseball diamond for the summer baseball program. Progress is also being made to raise money for the program.

Morris Nichols, Todd's Point Township road commission, has volunteered to take the responsibility to level the dirt at the new diamond. The project to complete the new diamond is moving along quickly.

Volunteers with trucks are donating their time and fuel to haul clay and sand onto the infield. Money has also been donated by individuals and businesses in Findlay and Shelbyville for the project.

Wednesday's Pony League vabaseball game marked the "grand opening" of a new concession stand. Ibe stand is a camper with a newly remodeled interior and was donated to the summer baseball program by Sheldon Tucker to help children earn money to support the various leagues.

Another donation which participants in the summer baseball program are anticipating is the donation of light poles and installation of lights by Central Illinois Public Service Co. The lights are from the west diamond of the Shelbyville park and have been given to the Findlay program. Other lights are being sought.

The other fundraising project is a drawing. The date for the drawing has been changed from Wednesday, July 2 to Thursday, July 10. Prizes continue to be donated for the drawing.

T-ball season is almost over, coach reports excellent results

With only one practice left in the season, T-Ball coach Teddy Scott has reported that nearly 22 regular baseball players have come out each Wednesday evening to try their hand at learning the skills of baseball.

"These children are kindergartners and first graders who enjoy just doing as the 'bigger' guys do. That, of course, is learning to bat, catching with a glove and getting a few rules under their belts," Scott said. "No one has signed up for the pro's or been drafted, but many will be moving on to the next level, Peanut League, where they will be involved with competition of teams from other towns."

Scott said the boys and girls made tremendous progress in their ball skills and "all parents can feel proud to know that they all have a lot of potential in the future. Besides, they seem to automatically have a good time."

She has expressed her appreciation to parents for bringing cold drinks and being at the practices to support all of the children. She also thanked assistant coaches Elaine Beery, Randy Davis and Randy Wamsing for their help.

Sugar-Free, Salt-Free Canning Okay for Some Foods, Not for Others

Many Americans are trying to cut down on the amount of sugar and salt in their diets, and that's good. But when they reduce or eliminate the salt and sugar in home-canning recipes... that's not always so good.

It all depends on what you're canning. Sugar cannot be left out of homemade jellies, jellies or preserves. And salt must not be left out or decreased in fermented pickles or sauerkraut.

Whole and chunk fruits may be canned without sugar, but you might not like the color, flavor or texture as much. While sugar improves the quality of canned fruits, it is not essential for a safe product. Likewise, vegetables — other than fermented pickles, sauerkraut and tomatoes — may be safely canned without salt. The safety will not be harmed, only the quality.

Fruits that are canned in plain water will tend to shrivel and sometimes float. Hot-packing (partly cooking the fruit before putting it in the jars) will minimize this problem.

Many cooks have found fruit juice to be a happy medium between sugar syrup and plain water. Apple juice or white grape juice is pale and bland enough in flavor that it won't mask the other fruit flavors.

Canning fruits with artificial sweeteners is not a good idea. When it's heated, the sweetener will turn bitter and the final product will likely be inedible. If you want to use artificial sweeteners in home-canned fruit, it's best to wait until serving time.

It is recommended to use the fruit juice as you would water or syrup, and process the fruit for the usual length of time in a boiling-water bath.

Salt-free vegetables should also be processed for the usual amount of time — but in a pressure-canner. It is not recommended to use salt substitutes in home-canned foods because they leave a bitter or metallic aftertaste. For best taste, these should be added to the vegetable at the table.

If you have any questions about canning or are in need of approved recipes, please contact the Cooperative Extension Service at 774-4812.

Suntanned Today—Sorry Tomorrow

If you are headed for a day at Lake Shelbyville, make sure you have packed your sun screen.

Sun worshippers of all ages take pride on their healthy glow, but it can be very costly. Severe burns, premature wrinkling and drying of the skin, and skin cancer are just some of the unhealthy side effects that are caused from excessive sunning.

About 400,000 cases of skin cancer occur each year in this country, and more than 7,000 people die each year of skin cancer. Although most of these cancers are highly curable, most of them are also highly preventable.

When you spend time in the summer sun, be sure to protect yourself. We all need to learn to be satisfied with a modest tan, gradually acquired. Early morning or late afternoon tanning sessions are best, because the sun's burning rays are most intense between noon and three.

It's a good idea to take advantage of the sun-screening preparations on the market. Be sure to read the labels to be sure you know what you're buying. Some of these products promote a tan, while others actually screen out the rays of the sun to protect your skin. Baby oil and hand lotions may make your skin feel softer, but they won't screen out the sun's rays.

Parents need to pay special attention to babies and toddlers because they need extra-special protection from the summer sun. A few minutes of full sun is all a fair-skinned child should be exposed to at one time. Young children who spend a lot of time outdoors in the early afternoon should be protected with a sun-screening product made especially for sensitive skin.

Several activities planned for Armed Forces Day at lake

LAKE SHELBYVILLE - Several special attractions have been planned to lure visitors to Lake Shelbyville this weekend.

Saturday is Armed Forces Day at the lake, and scheduled activities include an appearance by the Chanute Air Force Base rock band "Horizon," a helicopter landing, jet fly-over, Marine weapons display, Army high-tech van display and courtesy boat inspections by the Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Activities begin with the landing of a U-H helicopter at 11 a.m. and continue until 5 p.m., according to an announcement made Friday by the Lake Shelbyville management office.

The flyover by a F-4 Phantom jet is slated for 11:15 a.m. with Horizon to take the stage at 11:30 a.m. and again at 2:30 p.m.

All activities will be held at the Shelbyville beach.

Around the County

By Edward N. Ballard
Shelby Co. Extension Adviser

Wheat harvest is pretty well completed around Shelby County, approximately two weeks ahead of normal schedule. This is very typical of the season with everything coming along ten days to two weeks ahead of what we would normally expect.

Of the wheat yields remaining, farmers were reporting a little higher yields than what they had normally expected. To date, I've heard yield reports all the way from 25 bushels to 65 bushels per acre. The normal range seems to be between 35 and 45 bushels per acre. The quality seems to be exceptionally good this year.

The wheat yields on the Kenneth Diehl Extension Vo. Ag. Demonstration plots range from 6.7 bushels to 41.5 bushels per acre. The effects of the winter damage was quite apparent on the variety plot along with the other wheat plots and extremely high bird damage this year also.

The top yielding variety was Auburn, 41.5 bushels per acre; Hart, 40.3; Roland, 39.8; Pioneer 2551, 30.0; Magnum, 18.5; Becker, 18.7; Scotty, 12.1; Arthur 71, 11.0; Pike, 12.1; Tyler, 9.4; FS 402, 9.3; Hybrix HW3021, 10.6; and Caldwell, 6.7 bushels per acre.

With the early harvest this would be quite advantageous for double cropping of soybeans if you have adequate moisture. Most farmers said they were not going to double crop because they didn't feel there was enough moisture there to germinate the beans. Some areas might have received enough rainfall on Sunday evening, June 22, to encourage them to go ahead and double crop.

Corn Tasseling

Corn started tasseling around Shelby County this past weekend. This is extremely early for the corn to tassel. We always hear the old saying corn should be knee-high by July 4, it is certainly outdated in today's modern agriculture. In fact, it looks like the majority of the corn will be tasseled by July 4 this year.

We also want to remind farmers that they should not be spraying postemergence spray on corn from the tassel to dough stage. A lot of farmers have been busy spraying with 2,4-D and Banvel postemergence for broadleaf control in corn and once the tassels start appearing then they should stop spraying with these postemergence sprays.

Turkey Production

In order to improve farm income a group has organized an Illinois Turkey Grower Coop. Its intent is to produce 1.5 million turkeys annually for the coop to be processed through their marketing channels.

The coop presently is engaged and seeking out those farmers who have existing poultry facilities or convertible buildings, explaining their program to them and giving them an opportunity to participate in this agriculture income alternative. By utilizing their buildings and labor they may be able to realize a substantial supplemental income.

If you would be interested or have building facilities and would like more information contact the Shelby County Cooperative Extension office, and we can provide you with additional information.

This is one other way I think we may be looking at in the future to supplement farm income. Looking at different types of alternative crops will be given more emphasis in the future. Recently we had one farmer in Shelby County who has gone into asparagus production. I think this is just another example of a way we might be diversifying our farm income in the future.

Corps vetoes Carlyle Resort question of condominium sales

CARLYLE, Ill. (AP) - The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has vetoed a proposal for a $125 million resort development on the southern shore of Carlyle Lake, a corps spokesman said.

"It was rejected because that would be a private use of existing public land," said Dennis Hogan of the corps' real estate division in St. Louis.

The resort plan presented by Spruce Development Co. of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., called for construction of an unspecified number of condominiums at South Shore State Park, Hogan* said Monday.

Although the proposal called for construction at a state park, the 26,000-acre lake is administered by the Corps of Engineers.

Gov. James R. Thompson "sent us a letter last week asking us to reconsider the proposal, but the proposal has not changed," he said. "Corps policy says there has to be public use of public land."

Hogan and Ron Chezem, property manager for the Illinois Dept. of Conservation, said Spruce was the only major developer considering a resort at Carlyle Lake.

Preliminary talks with the developer focused on plans for a marina that would accommodate more than 1,000 boats, a hotel with a sports complex, convention facilities and two golf courses, and the condominiums, Chezem said.

"No one has contacted us to say that there was a flat denial" of the Carlyle Lake.

proposal, Chezem said Monday from Springfield.

But Paul Nine, the president of Spruce Development, said he had been told by the Corps that its policy against condominiums was firm.

Without the condominiums to make a profit for the project, he no longer would be interested in a development at the lake, Nine said Monday, adding he doubted the corps could find another developer if that restriction remained.

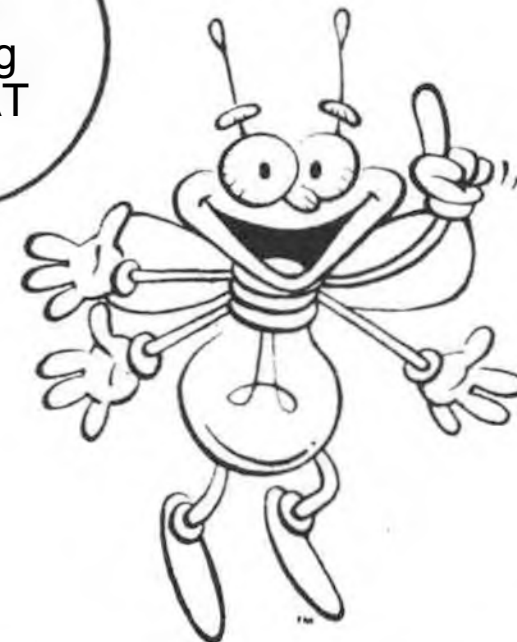

"Personally, I don't think they could," Nine said in a telephone interview from Bloomfield Hills. "It's a tough task anyway, because it's an unproven tourist area."

But Chezem said he remains optimistic a resort can be built at
